

How Honest are Conversations at Work?

Are staff very clear about what processes and practices they are doing well at and which ones they need to improve on or change?

Is this a routine pattern in your organisation's ethos ?

Honesty and conflict are often confused resulting in conversation avoidance and, subsequently, poorer performance of all affected.

Would you benefit from some training support in how to be fair, honest and consistent in staff development?

Would you like to reduce sickness absence and staff turnover and improve staff retention?

Book some training support to find out about embedding the 3Rs of success.

Contact Noo Thinking for a no obligation, initial, exploratory conversation.

020 8123 9277

www.noothinking.co.uk

workingtogether@noothinking.co.uk

This training is run by Nicole Godetz . Nicole is a versatile and creative consultant specialising in improving the working practices and, in turn, the performance of individuals, schools, businesses and organisations. “A supportive, insightful and motivating facilitator” committed to getting the best out of all individuals and driving a strong collaborative mentality to bring teams together and encourage reflective thinking. Highly recognised as an open and honest communicator, who uses intuitive listening skills and acute emotional intelligence. Nicole has proven expertise in mediation, stakeholder management, logistics, facilitation, training, review and change management. .

